

MEXICANS RALLY ABOUT GEN. VILLA

Rebel Chieftain Has Secured Plenty of Army and Now Plans to Move
at Once on Mexico City

Villa Ahumada, Mex. Dec. 4.—Fifty hundred rebels forming the main body of the army with which General Francisco Villa says he will march to Mexico City to overthrow the Huerta government were to enter Chihuahua
City, the state capital tonight.

It is this city that Villa now in supreme command of the military forces of the revolution, said he would gather about him ten thousand men to start south by way of Torreon and Zacatecas to Mexico City. The report that Zacatecas with 30,000 population, and the capital of a rich mining district, already was being attacked indicated that the rebels in the south were in great numbers.

Scattered bands of rebels ranging each from a few hundred thousands, are to be impressed into the main army, according to Villa's plan to have at least 20,000 men when he reaches the high plateau leading to the capital of the republic.

Rebel Army Well Equipped

Already equipped with machine guns, artillery and millions of rounds of ammunition by his victories in the north, Villa said he was no longer hampered by inability to get arms from foreign sources, but could readily obtain them from the federalists, who are reported in the remaining northern strongholds, to be ready to evacuate. The defeat of the federalists in their retreat from Juarez is known to have placed great quantities of arms in the hands of the rebels.

The rebels advised were that Prederico Moye, the civil governor of Chihuahua, had made elaborate preparations for the reception of Villa, having put in gala state the palace where Villa will now command, and that Villa would probably occupy a home vacated by one of the millionaire Ter-ranzas families.

Villa Was Once Bandit

It was from Chihuahua that Villa 19 years ago adopted the career of a bandit because he was ordered arrested on a charge of having killed an army officer. Now he has not only himself put the men who rallied around him occupying the quarters of federal officials who sought him as an outlaw.

Before leaving Chihuahua General
Mercedo at the request of the U. S.
consul, Martin Litcher and other consuls, left 200 soldiers for police duty, the promise being that the rebels on entering the city would not molest these men. The federal police took flight at the rebel approach and fled.
The consuls then prevailed upon citizens to do the policing.

Colorado's new State Senator, Mrs.

Helen Ring Robinson, is a many-sided woman. Of New Hampshire birth, she was a teacher for many years, and now that she has been made chairman of the Education Committee of the Senate, she hopes to establish the educational institutions of the State upon an improved financial basis, and to introduce a minimum wage bill for country school teachers. "Teaching is the most sacred vocation next to mil-lithood," says Mrs. Robinson. "The teacher molds the thoughts, aspirations and ideals of the pupil as the potter molds the clay." At Association hall,

"FRESNO DAN" WILL RECEIVE $150,000 FROM RUSSELL ESTATE

After Spending $300,000 to Fight Dakota Dan's Claim Russell Estate Has $300,000 Left.—Text of Will Calls Heir "Fresno Dan" and Clinches His Identity

William C. Russell the Melrose recuse, whose will was filed yesterday at the East Cambridge court, left an estate of about $300,000, according to Fresno Dan who has been accepted as his brother, and who receives one half of the estate.

"I will get" said Fresno Dan, last night at the Russell home in Melrose, at least $150,000. It has been said that I am a fake and was not the brother, but now that I receive this money, I guess that ought to show that I am Daniel Russell."

Before Dakota Dan appeared on the scene it was currently reported that the estate was worth $600,000. If this was so and Fresno Dan's present figures are correct, it would seem that about half the estate has gone in litigation over the two claimants.

Fresno Dan stated that nearly $200,- 000 of the entire estate was in real estate. Most of this is a big office building in Boston, valued at about $300,-

000, which is mortgaged for $150,000, and the Russell home which he estimates is worth $10,000. The rest of the estate is thought to be invested in securities, although Fresno Dan would not state just what it comprised.

In the will of William C. Russell, Dakota Dan, the man who has for a year claimed that he was the brother of William was not mentioned. Ferdinand B. Amy, William Russell's counsel, is left $25,000 and is named as executor of the will with a request that he will not be required to furnish any bond.

The will is returnable on Wednesday, December 17, and at that time a hearing on its allowance will be held.
Before then, however, it is expected the contestants who have already secured counsel to fight its allowance will be busy arranging to fight against it.

"The will is very complex" said Fresno Dan last night. "I will have to read it over more carefully. I just glanced at it yesterday and didn't understand much of it. I know that I am to get one half of the money and some of it is held in trust for me. I don't and much of it. I know that I get."

When asked if he intended to sell the Russell homestead Fresno Dan replied: "This old place which Willie loved so well I think I will keep. I would not like to see it go into the hands of strangers. Willie never traveled like I did and here he stayed.
He loved the old home and I want to keep it for his sake."

"I think however if I stay around this place—Melrose—I will go dippy.
Coming here from Chicago is like going from heaven to hell. This place is what is called a spillover town."

The heir to the Russell fortune said he did not know what he would do in the future, but would stay around Melrose for a short time. Although he goes around unguarded, he admitted that he feared for his life.

ATTENTION.

The selection of the town of Kittery hereby invite proposals for the removal of the Brown Tail moth nest, which may be found within the limits of the public roads, said limit to extend to the distance of 40 feet from the centre of the highways and to include all trees and shrubbery growing thereon. All bids must be filed with the chairman of the Board of Selectmen by Wednesday, Dec. 17, 1913.

LOOKING FOR ONE OF RELIEF PARTY

Want Name of Portsmouth Man Who Helped Rescue
the Explorer and His Men.

Chief of Police Hurley is in receipt of a communication from La-Fayette, Ind., in which the writer seeks some information as to one of the Greely relief expedition from this city.

The only men from this city who late Joseph H. Fletcher, U. S. N., who was a carpenter's mate on the U.
S. S. Bear and John Green who reed-ed for some time at the corner of Daniel and Penhallow streets and later moved to Manchester, N. H., where he died. The communication is the following:

December 2, 1913.
Chief of Police,
Portsmouth, N. H.

Dear Sir:—

Is there among some of your acquaintances anyone who remembers the third and successful attempt to rescue the explorer, Greely? If my recollection serves me right, I believe that one of the cooks on the expedition was a native of Portsmouth, N. H., and it is this gentleman's name that I would like to get. I first learned his name in 1885 but have forgotten it, through another gentleman, whose name I have likewise forgotten,
who worked in Woburn, Massachusetts in the above year, for the Sun Electric Company. This gentleman and myself worked in a department of the Sun Electric Company, the foreman of which was Julius Peyrot.

Of course I appreciate that it may almost be impossible for you to give me any information regarding the foregoing, but if you will be kind enough to refer me to some person or institution, that would be in a position to furnish the information in question, I will be very thankful.

Very truly yours,
THOMAS DUNCAN.

TO BE MERGED IN COAST GUARD

Proposed Bill to Combine Revenue Cutter and Life Saving Arms of Treasury Department.

Within a short time a bill will be introduced in congress at the institution of the Treasury Department for the consolidation of the revenue cutter and the life saving services under the name of Coast Guards. The officials are confident that these important branches of the government service when combined will reach maximum efficiency.

The bill will provide for elimination of a part of the administration machinery now required to operate the service separately. Further provisions will be made for the adoption as far as possible with the regulations now in force of the revenue cutter service.
William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, in his annual report to congress urged the combination of the services as a means of increased efficiency and economy.

Besides, the officials believe the action gives to the 35,000 employees of the life saving service a stimulating long desired. They will be enlisted and subject to military regulations. The new scheme would provide a pension system.

Byron R. Newton, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of both the life saving and revenue services is enthusiastic over the proposed change. He said:

"In 1912 the revenue service saved $1.30 in ships and cargoes from destruction by the sea for every dollar appropriated. The life savers rescue thousands from drowning each year.
One can easily see that the work of the two departments is so similar that closer co-operation would be a greater advantage."

GEORGE B. FRENCH CO.

STATE ARBITRATION BOARD SETTLE THEIR FIRST CASE

The new Board of Arbitration of which Dr. J. H. Neat of this city is the chairman, have settled their first case and satisfactory to both sides of the argument.

The dispute was between the Well-ere Union of the P. M. Hoyt Shoe company of Manchester and the company over the rate of pay that would prevail in that shop with the installation of new machinery.

The company had installed much improved and much faster working machines and pending the dispute had paid the operators $1.25 per day. On the old machine it was piece work and both sides were anxious to get back to this system. The company wanted to reduce the price per dozen from the old scale on the ground that the new machines were much better and a man could do a great deal more work. The union wanted the old rate, and after a hearing for two days the board reached an agreement of a price list that it is understood in satisfaction to both the company and the union.

Edison Starting Several New Series.

In addition to the Clock series in which Ben Wilson is starring, Edison announces the third series featuring Mary Fuller. It will be called "Dolly of the Dailies." Miss Fuller appearing as a newspaper reporter. She will have many stirring adventures, as she will be assigned to all sorts of difficult cases. Action Dailies, out of the fullness of his twenty-one years of newspaper work, will write twelve of these "Dolly" stories, each one to be released on the last Saturday of the month.

William Wadsworth is to be featured in a series telling the near-matrimonial adventures of an over-matched young woman, Mark Swan, famous for his comedies, will write three stories, the first of which will be released Monday, December 23rd, under the title "Her Face Was Her Fortune." The series, each of which will be a Monday release, will be entitled "Wood It, Would." Mark Swan is also writing another comic series, the "Andy" pictures, in which little Andy Clark will star. The first of these called "Andy Gets a Job" is released Wednesday, December 4th.

Ben Wilson Has Son.

That terrible pulse at the Edison Studio is not caused by staging half a dozen Civil War dramas. Not at all—it is simply Ben Wilson growing over a brand new addition to the Wilson family. Ben is so pleased that he just cannot keep still. They are offering a gold medal at the studio to any one who can prove that he was in the building ten minutes without having "papa" tell him all about it. Mrs. Wilson will be remembered as Josephine McAlister, the name under which she played in many Edison films. Mother and son are enjoying the best of health and Ben is getting like a two year old.

Yale Boss Taken a Cold One.

Lovely weather for swimming. For further reference see Yale boss who has no one for Charlie Seay as a weather prophet. Yale was playing a young swimmer in Civil War times, who saved his father by swimming a small river. It had been decided not to make this film until next spring when the swimming would be a little more comfortable. But the spell of warm weather was too much for Charlie Seay and he insisted upon starting the film at once. The war on and began work. On the second day Yale's swimming scene was scheduled at the Bronx River, but when that day broke it was cold—very cold and poor Yale shivered all morning. In contemplation of that icy plunge, the picture had been started and there was nothing to do but finish it. So down went Yale to the shores of the chaste Bronx-river and swam like a man.

Alice Washburn in Serious Role.

There undoubtedly were a great many photo-play fans who were startled at seeing Alice Washburn in a serious role in "A Crime for Thankfulness." Edison's famous comedienne has occasioned much merriment and laughter by her clever caricatures and irrepressible humor. But she has become absorbed in the minds of the public with comedy of every description. It was therefore somewhat of a shock to her friends when she appeared in a sympathetic servant with never a smile on her face. Miss Washburn enjoyed the change.

COUNSEL PLANS TO DISMISS CASE

Confident That State Cannot Connect Veterinary With Murder of Dr. Knabe.

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 4.—The state continued in present testimony today to support its theory of murder and to fasten the crime on Dr. William L. Knabe, who is on trial here charged with killing Dr. Helen Knabe.

So confident was the defense that nothing would be brought out to connect the accused veterinary with the death of Dr. Knabe that the announcement was made today that a motion to dismiss the case would be made to the court this morning. The prosecution rested its case today and the witnesses were called.

Three witnesses swore this afternoon that they heard the shrill scream of a woman in the vicinity of Dr. Knabe's apartment sometime after midnight on the night she met her death. Joseph Carr, one of these witnesses, who was passing the apartment building at the time added that a few moments later he encountered a man walking briskly out of the door in the rear of the structure. The man was holding a handkerchief over his nose the witness said.

Description Ends To Tally

The description of the man did not differ from any other that has been given yesterday by a witness. The day who said he met a man coming out of the apartment on the night of the murder about an hour earlier in the evening. Mr. Carr said that the man he saw was about 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighed about 180 pounds. Dr. Carr measured 5 feet 9 inches and weighed more than 200 pounds.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Vail Powell, who occupied the third floor flat directly above Dr. Knabe testified that she heard screams between 12 and 1 in the night. She said the screams seemed to come from a point about a block to the south, Jefferson Street, the negro janitor, who slept in a basement bedroom directly under Dr. Knabe's room declared he was awakened by the noise of something falling in the room above him. This sound he said was followed by a scream he said and then he heard light footsteps. As he was dressing about 5.30 in the morning he said he again heard footsteps in the room above.

Attempt To Prove Jealousy

In the effort to establish a motive for the alleged murder, the prosecution introduced as its witnesses, Miss Katherine Fleming, who admitted that Dr. Carr had been attentive to her for the last three years. Miss Fleming denied however that any engagement existed between them, although she said the subject of marriage had been discussed.

witnesses are yet to be heard. They are Miss Katherine McPherson, the office girl, who discovered the doctor's dead body and August Knabe, the doctor's cousin, who was the first person summoned to the apartment after the discovery.

GALLINGER BUSY.

Senator Will Fight Against Naming Date for Final Vote on Currency Bill.

Senator Gallinger as minority leader, is endeavoring to prevent the currency bill from being introduced through the senate and brought to a final vote before the Republicans have had an opportunity to voice their views.

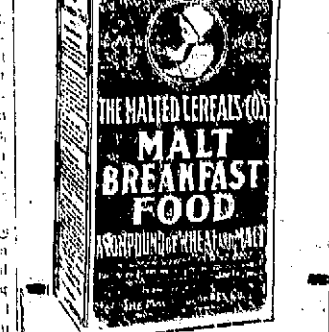

Senator Gallinger on Wednesday gave notice that he should resist any attempt to fix a date for a final vote until all senators who so desired had been heard. He stated that he should enter into no filibuster, but that he believed so important a measure should be given in fair hearing.

Senator Gallinger also gave notice that he should present a resolution to prevent any one senator from monopolizing the closing hours of debate, and limiting each man's time to ten minutes should he find such a step necessary.

Lime Salts and Health.

The Berliner Klinische Wochenschrift, in an article on the influence of lime salts on the constitution and health, speaks of some physicians who are coming more and more to believe that the use of calcium (lime) in various forms is the keystone of individual hygiene. Reinhardt, a German physician, quoted, says: "Neurasthenic, overworked and physically depressed persons are so rapidly healed by the chloride of calcium solution that they cannot show sufficient gratitude. They feel as if newly born, full of zest of life, stronger and more enduring than ever and twenty years younger." It is not improbable that there is here an over measure of enthusiasm. Many of the older physicians will remember Doctor Brown-Sequard and the wonderful things that were to be done by his discovery in making old fellows young again. The melancholy Jacques observed that "from hour to hour we ripe and ripe and then from hour to hour we rot and rot"—the decay of the natural forces of age. This is as true today as it was in "As You Like It," in the forest of Arden.

Overwhelmed With Work.

Along in the '60s Pat Casey pushed a wheelbarrow across the plains from St. Joseph, Mo., to Georgetown, Colo., shortly after that he "struck it rich." In fact, he was credited with having more wealth than anyone else in Colorado. A man of great shrewdness and ability, he was exceedingly sensitive over his inability to read or write. One day an old timer met him with "How are you getting along, Pat?" "Go 'way from me, now," said Pat, "I'm head's bustin' wid lust noes." It takes two id pencils it day to do me wurruk.—Everybody's Magazine.

TO ESTABLISH CIVIC GOVERNMENT IN NORTHERN MEXICO

Juarez, Mex., Dec. 4.—While looting by isolated bands or confiscation of property by the Rebels may continue, the days of fighting in Northern Mexico are numbered, so far as the present revolution is concerned, according to opinions expressed by Rebel leaders today.

Gen. Francisco Villa's assertion that there was not much more to fight for in the north because of the bankrupt condition of the Federal Army, which caused it to evacuate so important a city as Chihuahua, has spread among the Rebels.

What most immediately concerns the so-called Constitutional party now is the elaboration of its civil Government. This embraces a huge systematized customs to be enforced along the border. The Rebels hold all the important border towns except Nuevo Laredo and Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass.

There remains also to be put in force a uniform currency system for the Rebel and Federal currency are in conflict, one kind being acceptable in one place and another kind in another. The Rebel postage stamps already are in use. Many Governors and state officials are to be selected.

Within a short time, the leaders say, a Government will be in operation in the northern part of the country which will be entirely independent of that at Mexico City.

The settlement of the civil questions is one reason why Villa has asked Gen. Carranza to meet him at Chihuahua. Sylvester Terrazas, a newspaper editor in Chihuahua, who is not related to one wealthy Terrazas family, has been selected for Governor of the state. Villa expects to leave to Carranza the task of establishing civil government, devoting himself to the military campaign southward towards Mexico City.

TEACHERS PENSION ACT DISCUSSED

Mrs. Elizabeth Elkins of Concord, of the State Teachers' Association and on the special committee on teachers' pension, addressed the school teachers of this city at the Assembly hall on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Elkins gave an interesting account of what has already been done in this line and predicted that a bill would be secured from the next legislature. The plan of the pension was being perfected.

A committee of Miss Alice Newton, Bertha Watson and Katherine Deane was appointed to look after the Portsmouth school and all of the teachers signed the petition.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil Is Pure Yet Without Taste or Smell

Now that castor oil is tasteless a perfect balm has arrived. Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil, a new product of the Kellogg Oil Mills, is so absolutely without taste or smell that even the children do not object to it.

Good bye drugs and pills. The Kellogg way of making it does not take a single drop of good oil of the castor oil; rather it purifies the oil and makes it more effective.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil does even better work than the old-fashioned tasteless kind. Sold at all drug stores in 2½ and 50¢ bottles, not in bulk. Ask for it by name or you may be given the old kind, mixed or flavored.

The signature Kellogg's is on every bottle, in a green castor leaf trade mark.

Made only by Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., oil refiners.

AN AMERICAN GANGES.

The Hindu must, of course, bring his own ideas of funeral ceremonies to America. Some time ago it was announced that some Hindus had attempted to float the dead body of one of their countrymen down the Sacramento river. RED FLOWER AND RED PEPPER TO RACE

Much interest is being manifested among the horsemen of this section over the match race between the chestnut gelding Red Flower owned by Charles Tibbitts of Portsmouth, and the chestnut stallion Red Pepper owned by Leslie Littlefield of Wells, Me., for a purse of $200 which is to take place at Granite State Park next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Red Flower had an easy race beating the Portsmouth mare from here last Monday, while Red Pepper outclassed the bay mare Miss Machine another Portsmouth owned horse. Neither of the winners was under a hard drive during their races. Red Flower, however, made faster time in his race than Red Pepper did and the gelding will probably go to the post a favorite in the race next Monday.

The horses each have a race record of 2:47 1-4. The record which Red Pepper carries was made over the Granite State Park track a few years ago when he was driven by Frank Pike. It is said that Red Pepper will be driven by Mr. Farhush of Brighton, Mass., who drove him here last Monday. Red Flower will be driven by his owner, Charles Tibbitts, and a race worth seeing is assured when the horses come together. The horsemen of York County, Me., Stratford and Rockingham counties will turn out in large numbers to witness the race.

Arrangements are being made for another race on the same day between two well known horses but as yet the stakes have not been deposited, but it is thought that the match will be completed before the end of this week.—Dover Democrat.

A LOVELY FACE— BUT UGLY HAIR

How often you see an otherwise lovely face spoiled by homely hair— a face that would be most charmingly beautiful if she only had prettier hair. What a pity! and how foolish! Because that ugly, stringy, dull, lifeless-looking hair that may be, can be made as glossy, soft, silky and beautiful as the heart could desire if only taken proper care of.

Harmony Hair Beautifier is just what it is named— a hair beautifier. It is not a hair dye, or hair oil—it is just a dainty rose-perfumed liquid dressing to give the hair its natural gloss and brightness, its natural wavy softness, its natural rich beauty. Very easy to apply— simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing. It contains no oil and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Hair Shampoo. This pure liquid Shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments! Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet-smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in additional, very ornamental bottles, with springer tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50¢. Every way, or your money back! Sold in this community only at our stores. LOJEZ MAY HAVE MADE HIS ESCAPE

Bingham, Utah, Dec. 4.—It was declared by Sheriff Andrew Smith this morning to continue for another 24 hours the searches which were initiated in the Minnie Mine Monday afternoon in hope of driving Ralph Lojez from his hiding place as it has been learned several tunnels have not been reached by the poisonous gases.

Coal tar will be employed in the generation of gases, and it was definitely announced the mine would not be opened until Friday afternoon.

Lojez has now been a fugitive for two weeks and in that time has killed six men, the first a Mexican with whom he had engaged in a quarrel and the other five peace officers who attempted to arrest him. He took refuge in the Minnie mine last Thursday, but many believe he made his escape from the underground workings either Saturday or Sunday, before the work of filling the mine with poisonous gases was begun.

NO MORE ARMS TO BE ADMITTED TO IRELAND

Dublin, Ireland, Dec. 4.—The importation of arms into Ireland is about to be forbidden, according to the news papers here which declare that the issue of a proclamation to that effect may be expected in a day or two. Augustine Barril, chief secretary for Ireland, is here in conference with the Earl of Aberdeen, the lord lieutenant and the result, it is thought, will be that the Government will take this first step against the plans of rebellion of the followers of Sir Edward Carson, the Irish Unionist leader. Shipments of rifles and bayonets in large quantities into Belfast have been made, on the increase during the past few weeks.

Would Have Less Handshaking.

The abolition of the annual reception at the White House is another wise act of Woodrow Wilson, says Julius Chambers, in the Brooklyn Eagle. Since the time of George Washington a custom has existed for the public to form in line and shake the hand of the chief executive. During Roosevelt's term the line often stretched entirely through the front yard to the gate opposite the Lafayette statue on Jackson square. On one occasion Mr. Cleveland shook hands with more than 7,000 people on a New Year's day. Mr. Taft was very obliging also. "It is perfectly proper that the members of the diplomatic corps and the cabinet should pay their respects, but the line should be drawn there. Senators and representatives ought to keep away from the White House on that holiday; it should be the one occasion of the whole year in which the President would not be 'boned' for appointments! Another advance I sincerely hope to see Mr. Wilson make will be the stoppage of weekly handshakings at the door of the east room. While they enable tourist parties to return to Spodunk and say they have 'shaken the President's hand,' the custom must be an insufferable bore to any man who has to engage therein. The number of visitors does not usually exceed a few hundred, but many of the hands are not as clean as they might be—are 'travel stained.' I have sympathy with many Presidents during such ordeals. Having known ten chief executives, I never have 'got into the line' to inflict myself upon any of them.

Should Have Plenty of Air.

The custom of having the sleeping apartment well ventilated, even in the coldest weather of winter, is becoming more general with our people, as it should. It is a well known fact that a person who sleeps with his windows closed is only shortening his or her life and there is no reason to be surprised when tuberculosis makes its appearance. If all mankind could live out of doors all the time, and not too closely together, tuberculosis would die out in one or two generations. Since this ideal condition cannot be achieved, not even for the sake of baffling humanity's worst enemy, the next best thing is to bring as much out of doors into our houses, and especially into our sleeping rooms. There is nothing which so quickly lowers vitality to the point where the tubercle bacillus can get in its work as breathing stale, close, lifeless, impure air during the hours of sleep. There is nothing which builds up the resisting powers of the body more quickly than an abundant supply of fresh air, particularly at night. If sleeping out of doors will cure consumption, as it has done many a time, surely it will go far toward keeping a healthy person from getting consumption. It is not always possible for city dwellers to take their beds out of doors, but, at least, they can open windows and let out of doors come in.

For a Worthy Cause.

Now the Red Cross Christmas seals have been placed on the market they mark the beginning of a new campaign which will last a little more than a month, against the world's worst scourge—tuberculosis. It has been estimated that this disease causes one-seventh of the deaths throughout the world annually, and it is probable that this figure is under the mark, rather than above it. In all climates, in all countries and in all seasons, this dreaded malady has carried on its ravages, rich and poor, but especially the latter, falling victims to what was believed to be an unconquerable disease. When you buy a Red Cross Christmas seal it is for a worthy cause.

Good Examples for Missionary Work.

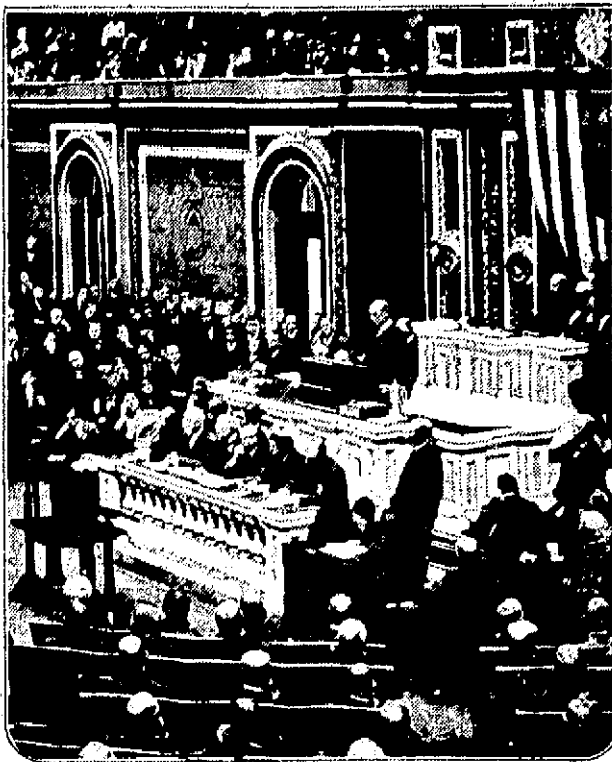

The people who need more religion are: The man who lets his horse stand all day in the rain without a blanket; the man who growls like a beast with a sore head when his wife asks him for money; the woman who whispers it around that someone else is not just what she ought to be; the preacher who is always looking for an easier place and higher salary; the man who walks the streets with his hands in his pockets while his wife carries the baby; and the man who keeps a dog and says he can't afford the home newspaper.

The Local Election Tuesday.

The voter will find upon examination of the ballot that the republican ticket as made up is one of the strongest presented for years. Every name on the ticket deserves the hearty support of every member of the party. There is no excuse for any republican to cut his ticket this year. From Harry B. Yeaton down to the last name on the ballot are the names of citizens who can serve the city with credit. See that your neighbor goes to the polls on Tuesday next.

The time for making those New Year's resolutions is near at hand. It is better to make a few and keep them, than many and break them.

Copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

The scene in the house of representatives when President Wilson read his message to the new congress was thoroughly impressive. Mr. Wilson has revived the custom established by George Washington of reading his messages in person to the national legislators. He believes that the chief executive and the lawmakers should come in personal contact more frequently than has been the custom in the past.

CURRENT OPINION

American Public Is Entitled to Greater Degree of Safety on Our Railroads.

An ideal transportation situation can be attained only by large additions to the facilities and great improvement in methods.

The added facilities can be secured only through expenditures from surplus earnings or from expansion of credit. In either way the total cost to purchasers of transportation would be increased.

Even if it be true that the present financial condition of transportation agencies is due to reckless, imprudent or even dishonest financing in the past it would be a mistake to undertake to correct it by a policy of reprisal which would impair the usefulness or efficiency of the carriers upon which the welfare—the very life—of the commonwealth of the country depends.

It seems to me that the traveling public is justly entitled to a greater measure of safety while patronizing our railroads. The importance of this should be brought forcefully to the mind of every railroad official and every railroad employee. They should be held to strict accountability for neglect. It would be well to revive and enforce the old fundamental rule for train operation: "In case of doubt take the safe side."—Edgar E. Clark, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Good word for the Spider. Even those little weather prophet spiders that build their nests on the grass are of great value. It is claimed that if many of such webs are seen in the morning on the lawn, it will not rain, as these spiders know enough not to build them when it is about to rain. These same spiders capture hundreds of flies, and they are especially valuable in catching mosquitoes. The webs are harmless, as are the spiders, and should never be destroyed.

TEXAS FLOODS SLOWLY SUBSIDE

Twenty-Four Is Death Toll and Property Loss Reaches Into Millions.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 4.—The Texas flood center shifted southward tonight toward the gulf, centering from Hearne to Richmond, where the flood crest of Brazos river continued to do great damage and caused some loss of life. At the same time the general flood situation improved when rains began to cease after three days' continuous downpour over most of the state and the creeks in north and west Texas began to fall slowly. Before relief came the floods had overspread five large river basins from the head waters of the Sabine, in northeast Texas, to the San Antonio river in the southwest.

The total number of dead as a result of the floods stood early tonight at 24. Estimate of property damage ranged between one and two million dollars, with Waco and San Antonio the heaviest sufferers among the cities. The San Antonio loss was a quarter of a million, and Waco's damage was expected to be as great.

As the water receded pilfering began in Waco and militia was put on duty in East Waco this afternoon to guard property in deserted houses and stores. Waco this afternoon also reported its first fatalities when J. W. Ray and C. McDaniel fell from a railroad bridge into the Brazos and were given up for drowned.

From Hearne, where seven negroes were drowned today in the unexpected rush of the Brazos rise, it was reported that houses, horses, mules and cattle floated down the river.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 60-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

ARMORY SITE ON CITY PROPERTY

Mayor and Council Meet But Have Very Little Business to Consider.

A meeting of the Mayor and Council was held Thursday evening with but five members of the Council present and very little to take their attention. Messrs. Tilton, Duncan, Plankham, Clark and Cox.

The usual number of petitions were received and acted on.

Councilman Plankham for the committee on Armory site stated that the committee had finished their work. Mayor Hadger stated that the deeds had been passed and the property was in possession of the city.

A petition of Mr. N. A. McKenna for the purchase of land at the Plains was brought up. Mr. McKenna has purchased the Plains Tavern which he is tearing down, and wants to develop the property. The lot of land was shaped so that it could not be worked to an advantage at this end of the lot. The city owns a half acre of land inside of the electric road track, which would shape his land up so that he could build, and he wished to purchase it from the city. He had two planks to make a swap with the city or purchase. The land in question is absolutely of no use to the city and very few even thought it belonged to the city. The matter was explained by Mr. McKenna who appeared before the Council and explained his plans for erecting two houses there next spring. Mr. Paul also appeared in favor of the purchase.

The matter was finally referred to a special committee consisting of Mayor Hadger, Councilmen Duncan and Plankham.

A petition of Mrs. Alice Paul and Mrs. Rommie Kelley, petitioned the city to accept a new street laundry building extending from the Park street extension to Orchard street. With the petition was a warranted deed of the property to the city.

Mr. H. Paul appeared for the petitioners and explained that the petitioners had built a street fifty feet wide from the Park street extension already accepted by the city to Orchard street, and had paid over $300 for a lot for an outfit on Orchard street.

It was with the idea of continuing the development of the property in that section and they had already sold eight lots upon which houses would be erected next year.

A resolution was referred to the committee on Armory site.

Notice was received from Julius Ghorst that his property on Newton avenue had been damaged by the raising of the grade of the avenue and he asked that the damages be assessed.

A similar petition from Mrs. Bertha McCue and Abbie Russell that their property on the same street was damaged and that they be awarded damages, was also received and both were referred to the committee on claims to report.

A bill of Mrs. Stimpson of Mark street for work she had done in clearing a sewer, was presented and referred to the committee on claims.

C. H. Fisher of the Rendering Company was elected a weigher.

A resolution transferring the sum of $200 from sewers to sidewalks and $200 from roads to street in the department of Public Works, was passed. Mayor Hadger stated that it was the usual end of the year transfer and he hoped that all of the small odds and ends of the year might be cleared up so that nothing would be left for the next administration to have to bother with.

A resolution transferring $350 from construction of Peeverly Brook dam to land claims was passed after it had been explained that the dam had caused the water to flow back further than was expected and a new land dam was to be built.

The matter of the over balance of the account of the poor department, was taken up and Auditor Murray stated that he thought that there would be enough in revenue account to transfer to clear this matter up and other odds and ends that were left and that the proper resolutions would be drawn at the next meeting.

M. C. H. Paul addressed the Council.

and asked if the board of public works are over the Council, for the reason that the Council had instructed the Board to lay the sewer on Park avenue, and the Board had refused to do this. Mayor Hadger stated that the Council were the supreme authority of the city and asked the special committee on the new street to look into the matter.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Brush This Through Faded, Lifeless Locks and they Become Dark, Glossy, Youthful

Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmothers made up a mixture of sage tea and sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of men and women who value their even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Before it takes off dandruff, keeps scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifying the hair, after a few applications it brings back the gloss and lustre and it gives it an appearance of abundance.

THE WAY TO PREVENT COLD WEATHER DISEASES

SALADS AND SANDWICHES.

The unusual always appeals to most people, and when a combination never before heard of is mentioned, we are all anxious to try it. Here is one which will at least excite remark:

Poppy Seed Salad.—Grate a little onion, chop over some freshly washed and well dried lettuce; add the finishing touch by sprinkling over it some freshly roasted poppy seed, which adds an unusual flavor. Serve with French dressing.

Olives and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop in a bowl equal quantities of tender heart celery and stuffed olives; toss with salad dressing to spread easily, and spread on well buttered bread.

Mint Cucumber Sandwiches.—Place thinly sliced crisp cucumber dipped in French dressing, and sprinkle with finely chopped, put together just before serving.

Salad of Nuts and Green Peas.—A delicious salad may be made by combining green peas with English walnuts in the proportion of a third of nuts to two-thirds of peas, with a desired salad dressing. Serve on lettuce leaves with a slice or two of tomato for a garnish.

Summer Salad.—Cook a quart of shelled Lima beans in salted water. When done, drain the beans and chill them. Peel and cut into very small dice two crisp tart apples and chop fine two sweet green peppers, from which the seeds and ribs have been removed. Mix all together with mayonnaise flavored with onion juice.

Cheerful and apples are a good combination, as are any nuts with good flavored apple.

Great Writer Not Musical.

Macaulay was entirely inaudible to the charms of music. He wrote from Windsor castle on January 14, 1861: "At table I was between the duchess of Norfolk and a foreign woman who could hardly speak English intelligibly. I got on as well as I could. The band covered the talk with a succession of 'sonorous' tones. 'The Campbells are Coming' was one. 'Auld Macaulay's Biography,' Sir George Oth Trevelyan, supplies the following instructive footnote: 'This is the only authentic instance on record of Macaulay's having known one tune from another.'"

Preparation for Marriage.

No man can learn that he has not preparation for learning, however near to his eyes is the subject. A chemist may tell his most precious secrets to a carpenter, and he shall be never wiser; the secret he would not utter to a chemist for an estate. Our eyes are hidden; that we cannot see things that are in the face until the hour arrives when the mind is opened; then we behold them, and the time when we saw them not is like a dream.—Chrysostom.

FOUND BOYS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Dec. 4.—The vanguard of a small army of boys and girls who are doing their share to further the "stay on the farm" movement have arrived in Washington. The party numbers about 1200. They came from Ohio, where they won the trip as reward for the excellence of the corn grown by the boys and the baking done by the girls.

See, Hyman, who addressed the boys and girls at Continental Hall last night, said he was kept busy lecturing to keep a little farm in Nebraska running. At the same time he declared that the farm was the future of the young man and that it offered greater opportunities than any other vocation. He went on to say that his farm was in the nature of a sinking fund and that ultimately he expected to get more out of it than he put in.

Next week representatives of boys' and girls' clubs in other states will reach the National Capital on a sight seeing trip. There will be a champion member of boys' corn clubs from each of the Southern states; champions from girls' canning clubs from Southern, Western and Northern states, and girls' and boys' potato clubs in Massachusetts, Ohio, Utah, Iowa and Michigan, Colorado will send a sugar beet boy.

Those who have come from Ohio arrived in six special trains, on which there also were several hundred friends and relatives, making an excursion of nearly 2000, who trooped over the public buildings of the city and paid a visit to the tomb of George Washington at Mt. Vernon. While here the party will visit President Wilson and see, Houston who will present them with diplomas.

The second delegation of boys and girls will reach Washington on Dec. 11. They will meet at one of the large hotels, where a "get acquainted" meeting will be held.

Immediately thereafter will begin the round of sightseeing that has been outlined for them by officials of the Department of Agriculture.

The excursions are being made at the expense of the citizens of the states from which the youngsters come. The Ohio excursion it is estimated, will cost the business men of that state nearly $100,000.

THE WAY TO PREVENT COLD WEATHER DISEASES

There would be lots less sickness during the cold weather if folks would only take ordinary common sense precaution against it. When you hear there is small pox around you don't lose much time in getting your family vaccinated. But lots now you do not use the same good sense in preventing colds, the grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, typhoid fever, rheumatism and other diseases, some of them very serious and dangerous, and some of which nearly every member of your family is almost certain to suffer from before winter is over unless some medicine is taken to build up the body and put it in perfect order before cold weather sets in.

Vaccination prevents the growth of germs of small pox in the blood and puts the system into a proper healthy condition to resist small pox. Resall Olive Oil Emulsion is designed as an aid to prevent as well as relieve disease. It strengthens the body to overcome the germs and helps to put your system into the right condition to resist disease. It contains the four Hypophosphites recommended by physicians to tone the nerves and blood, in combination with purest Olive Oil to nourish and strengthen them.

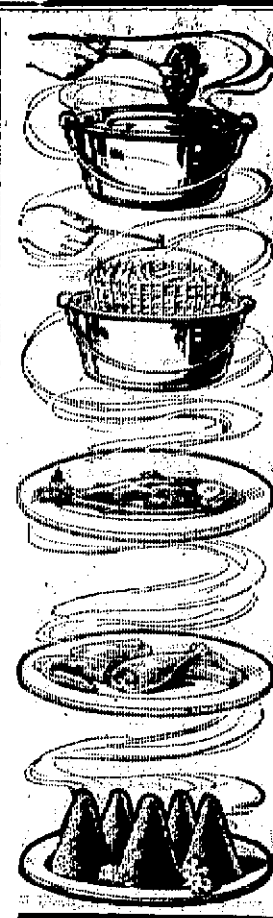

You who are weak and run down, and you who are apparently well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Resall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired out, run down, nervous, emaciated or debilitated—the run-downs—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Resall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Resall remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. Pleasant tasting—unlike the cold liver oil preparations—you'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its strengthening, invigorating, building-up disease preventing effects. If it does not help you your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store—The Resall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

CHEFF FINED $3000 DESPITE ART PLEA

New York, Dec. 4.—John Milton, head chef at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, was today fined $3000 for violating the immigration law by bringing three assistants here under contract, from France. Milton pleaded guilty and asked for leniency on the ground that a good chef was as great an asset in his profession as a famous singer was in grand opera. This latter he said was employed in much the same manner as he employed his assistants.

A TIME OF NO CRYING BABIES

Boston, Dec. 4.—Mme. Maria Montessori of Rome, founder of the Montessori system of education, brings praise of a time when there shall be no more crying of babies.

The famous Italian educator landed at New York yesterday and is coming to Boston soon.

In the good days to come not only will children be properly educated, so that learning shall be a joy, but even their infant year will be protected from all petty annoyances and pains that bring tears, is Dr. Montessori's prediction.

"Properly brought up children do not cry," she said, smiling at the astonished reporters who greeted her upon her arrival at the Holland House yesterday afternoon. "If a child cries that means it is suffering. Modern science has been able to interpret the needs of babies so that they will not suffer, and therefore they do not cry."

In the great hospitals of Rome, such as the Clinica Obstetrica and the Hospital Maternale, one may see 60 newborn babies in a ward and not hear a peep from any of them all day long. There will be the silence of the grave in that ward, broken only by a queer little gurgling noise when a baby wakes up and is hungry. Science has been able to guard the earliest hours of the child's life so that it feels no pain. These babies do not cry until they are old enough to have ideas they wish to express. Then they don't cry, but call. The age at which this happens depends upon the individual.

The non-crying baby, Dr. Montessori explained with a smile, has no connection with her method, which does not begin until the child is 2-1-2 or 3 years old. The discourse upon modern hospitals was prompted by the question: "Do you eliminate all punishments from your schools?"

"My method," she said, "does away with the necessity of punishment, because children happily employed do not need punishment. Children are what we call bad only because there has been some fault in their training or in their environment. Because the world is not perfect yet there will be children whose actions are not in harmony with the community in which they live. These children sometimes must be restrained from doing things contrary to the general good, but certainly they must never be beaten."

The Italian educator is in this country to study our systems of education, to see the work done by her own students, who have now more than 70 classes in different parts of the country and especially to give the people here who have expressed an interest in her system a broader view of the work.

One of the things of which she will speak while she is here is of a school which she hopes to start in Rome in which she may take young children and carry them through a term of 10 years or more. It will be a laboratory school where the children may be studied carefully and where they will live constantly under the supervision of the instructor. In this school, Mme. Montessori hopes to have children of different nationalities. Her method of instruction is so fundamental, she said, that it applies to the children of any nationality.

The children under her supervision now are from 2-1-2 to 5 years old. "Auto-education" is the basis of her system. She places a child in an environment of which it is the master. The furniture of the room is small. The child is not confined to a desk and follows its own inclination as to position. To insure its physical well-being and for plenty of fresh air there are gardens connected with the school. A child, she said, will recognize a ray of light when it is seven days old and then its psychological life begins. She did not think that the child at any age should be left without instructions, though she said that the system of education in which she believed tended to give independence to the child.

"But as the child advances in age," she said, "life naturally becomes more complex, and there is even more need of supervision."

Mme. Montessori could not speak of the preparation of young people for college.

"That is a difficult question to me," she replied, "because with the education carried on as I believe it should be, there would be no colleges as they are now understood."

The Roman educator's answer as to whether she was a suffragist or not was a familiar one.

"I am not a militant," she said, and then went on to say she believed that women should do everything that broadened them in any way.

Mme. Montessori is a woman of attractive personality. She is dark, with a clear complexion, and bright eyes. She has wavy, dark hair and a pleasing voice. She speaks French besides her native tongue. She is a woman of middle age, inclined to plumpness and has a general air of healthfulness and normality. The money she receives for her lectures in this country will be used for the fund to start the "human laboratory" in Rome.

Rhode Island is the only state in this country which has taken up officially the Montessori system of education, and there it is to be introduced into the state normal school Miss Clara Craig, supervisor of observation and training schools in Rhode Island, who was with Mme. Montessori yesterday, was sent by her state to take a four months' course at the Montessori school, and upon her return, she said yesterday, the state had officially accepted her report advising the adoption of the method of instruction. The only other countries represented at the school with her, she said, were India and England.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Brigadier General George P. Scriven, chief of the signal service of the War Department, told the House Military Affairs Committee today that while his department was asking only $300,000 for military aeronautics, Mexico had appropriated $400,000 for the same purpose.

PROGRESSIVES HOLD RALLY WITH RED FIRE AND MUSIC

The Progressives held a rally on Thursday evening, preceded by a brilliant torchlight procession, which formed at the postoffice and marched up Millington street to Cabot, through Middle street, where they stopped at Mr. Alchell's house.

Freeman's Hall was well filled with ladies and gentlemen when the first speaker, Hon. H. P. Gardner of Portland, Me., Progressive National committee-man from Maine opened the rally, and spoke about what the Progressives were doing for the people, how Progressive clubs are being formed throughout the country and every one of the 4,000,000 voters for Roosevelt in 1912 are working like beavers to elect him President in 1916.

Mr. Gardner is a good speaker and held the close attention of the voters who gave him frequent applause.

The next speaker was Oliver L. Elwood, a member of the executive Progressive committee of New Hampshire and interested his audience in his characteristic way. He said Oscar G. Alchell would be elected mayor on December 9th, as also would the whole Progressive ticket.

Major Urich gave a short history of the birth of the Progressive party in Chicago.

Oscar G. Alchell gave an eloquent address in which he told the voters of Portsmouth that he stood on the Progressive platform which stood for Portsmouth. He was for the upbuilding of Portsmouth and he had the courage of his convictions. A vote for him as mayor is a vote for a bigger and better Portsmouth.

Dr. Pickering, President of the Progressive Club, presided and reminded the voters that he was a candidate for the board of public works, and if elected he would use his ability and experience to run that department on business principles. "Pay As You Go."

The vocal band of twenty voices gave selections between the speeches.

Lieutenant Wood's injuries will not be permanent.

Will Hear the Men

The secretary of the navy has announced that he will hear representatives of the several trades at navy yards on the matter of wages for 1914 at the department in Washington on different dates. The date for those of the Portsmouth yard is set for Tuesday next. If the trades are unable to send a representative they can make their wants known in writing. Three hours will be given by the secretary to those who appear for a hearing.

Order Boat Fittings

A variety of boat fittings amounting to $2,000 have been ordered manufactured in the hull division. The list is for general issue.

Reward for Anchor.

The navy department has offered a reward of $250 for the return to the Newport naval station of one of the large anchors lost from the battleship Rhode Island, August 8, 1913, off Montauk Point Light.

I WONDER

Who is putting up that $200 on the tug of war team?

If he won't have some job to perform this osculatory stunt even if the pretty girl does like Page & Shaw's best?

Who can pick the next mayor of Portsmouth?

Why so many people ask questions of the train clerk at the depot after listening to his reel off the train announcement for 15 minutes before trains start?

If that post office clerk did not have some experience on his last deer hunt?

What the Jefferson Club is going to spring for political stuff on Tuesday?

Who is blowing the money for the A. P. A. paper in circulation about the city?

What the fire department intends to do with the old chemical engine?

Why the lights in the North church tower are left burning during the day?

Why the Boston & Maine adopted the Maine Central color in the painting of the depot?

If the Atlantic Shore Street Railway has dropped the idea of taking over the Portsmouth Electric Railway?

If any Christmas presents will pass between regular and veteran firemen this year?

Why some of the work that the Portsmouth navy yard should have to be going to southern stations?

If all the loud whistling by locomotives in the railroad yard at night is really necessary?

If the boys along the docks won't dive for the lost watch at North End in warm weather?

If the city and the Boston & Maine have ever come to any agreement as to which shall make road repairs on Noble's Island?

NOT A CASE OF TYPHOID FEVER IN THE ARMY

Washington, Dec. 3.—Remarkable progress in military sanitation and improvement in the health of the army is recorded in the annual report of Surgeon General George H. Turner. The surgeon general says it seems more than marvelous that among the number of men in the camps at Texas City and Galveston and along the Mexican border, constantly exposed to infection, not a single case of typhoid has occurred. That is attributed entirely to the compulsory immunization of the army by the typhoid, prophylactic. Surgeon General Turner says that while no measure has yet been found to eradicate tuberculosis from the army, as the result of improved sanitation and care in enlistments the rate of that disease is steadily diminishing. An interesting feature of the report is the conclusion of the board on tropical diseases that white men cannot advantageously remain many years in the tropics. Tropical sunlight is harmful by virtue of its heat rays; monkeys and rabbits are killed by exposure to the sun for an hour or two, even in December and January. It is recommended that if the troops are to remain in the Philippines, they should live under the most favorable conditions and in cool quarters.

POWER IN WHITE COAL

Possibilities for New York Towns and Cities from the Harnessing of the State Water Course—Tons of Unused Energy—Niagara Rapids Might be Made Productive—The Experience of Ontario.

Much has been said about the possibilities of developing wasted water powers in the state of New York, which it is estimated, could be made to supply more than two million horse power. The only development of consequence has been at Niagara Falls and that great natural resource has not been handled to the best advantage so far as the needs of the public are concerned. Some private corporations have made use of part of the water power at the head waters of the Hudson River, and along the Mohawk River, and what they have done furnishes ample proof that plans now before the state legislature are practical and will be of great advantage to nearly all the cities and towns in this state. In the earlier days of hydro-electric development the possibility of transmitting heavy currents over long distances was in doubt, but the methods of accomplishing this are now well understood and transmission lines are in operation on this continent and in Europe, which in some cases far exceed one hundred miles in length.

At present the best system for the people of this state to study is that which is now in operation in the Province of Ontario. The provincial hydro-electric commission has been able to distribute power from Niagara Falls over a wide stretch of territory from Toronto to the western part of the "Provinces." At one time it seemed doubtful whether the low rates charged for the service would prove profitable, and critics claim that no allowances were being made for depreciation and replacement. The report of the commission's chief engineer, Mr. A. Gaby, has just been made public, and it demonstrates that the business is in a most prosperous condition in every part of the Province. The municipalities served by the hydroelectric system have been able to meet all obligations for operation and maintenance charges, including interest and sinking funds, and to accumulate a balance available for depreciation and rest accounts without drawing on the ordinary tax receipts for deficits.

The Hon. Adam Beck, who is looked upon as the father of the idea, stated that the commission will be able to make further reductions in charges next year and a formal announcement is made that the reduction of hydro-electric rates to consumers will be proceeded with as soon as the municipalities have been consulted. In the cases of Toronto, Ottawa and London the commission has already prepared figures and will recommend that lower rates come into force on Jan. 2 next. In Ottawa and London the present cash discount of 10 per cent on domestic and commercial lighting will be increased to 25 per cent and a reduction of 18 per cent will take place in charges for power and street lighting. The rates fixed by the various municipalities have now been proved to include a wide margin of safety. The surpluses remaining in the hands of the municipal treasuries vary considerably because the rates are not uniform in all places and the cost of management is also a variable quantity, but Port Arthur reports a surplus of 50 per cent, Ottawa a surplus of 25 per cent, London a surplus of 20 per cent, and Toronto a surplus of 25 per cent, while in some of the smaller towns, such as St. Thomas and Waterloo, the surplus ran as high as 50 per cent over and above all operating expenses. Municipalities buy the power from the commission, and now that the commission has itself in a position to lower its primary rates, the people of that province are about to receive the lowest priced service of which the Commercial has any record.

The Cleveland Leader is urging that prosperous Ohio City to look about and secure for itself an electric service such as towns on the northern side of Lake Erie are now enjoying. It has made an independent investigation of the results in Canada and reports that the city of London, Ont., which is about the same distance from Niagara Falls as Cleveland, enjoys an advantage that makes people on the south side of the lake envious. It finds that a twelve-room house in London is lighted at an average cost of $2.04 a month, with a minimum service charge of 78 cents a month, subject to 20 per cent discount, and current used for cooking costs on an average of 6.7 cents a day in such an establishment. The current is sold in London at 3 cents a kilowatt hour, less 30 per cent discount, or a net price of 2.1 cents a kilowatt hour, when the bill is promptly paid at the end of the month. The transmission line from Niagara Falls to London is 100 miles long, and it is evident that the leakage of the high tension current from the line is very small.

Every city in the northern part of the state of New York can be supplied with electric current just as easily and cheaply as are the cities and towns of the province of Ontario, and it seems well proven that the current could be transmitted from the source of power to New York city itself with out serious loss. Leaving New York city out of the question, the people in the northern part of the state should take more interest in the proposed development than they are showing at present. This city can get steam coal cheaper than places like Syracuse, Rochester or Oswego and the service rendered in this locality is good and cheap as it is.

All the water that goes over Niagara Falls and that is added lower down to the flow at the head of the St. Lawrence River is available for the development of power at the great rapids that lie between Lake Ontario and Montreal. The state of New York has the same right to use its share of this water at the rapids as it has at Niagara Falls and plants capable of developing a million horsepower can be built on the river at comparatively little expense. Montreal is now getting all the power that it needs from this source, while we are letting it all go to waste as far as our share in this great natural source of wealth is concerned. The astonishing success which has been achieved by the provincial Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario should wipe out the objections which have been raised at Albany to the proposal to conserve and develop the water powers of this state.

SHOWING THE NEW YORKER

"There's a wonderful hot spring that bubbles up in the ocean a mile off Catalina, Indiana," remarked P. E. Burkhardt, a Poughkeepsie banker, as he leaned over the counter at St. Francis. "I was out strolling for yellowtail one day in a gasoline launch, when the boatman told me about the wonderful spring. We were not very far from it, so we cruised around and found it, and as we passed over it he dipped a bucket of water out of the ocean that was scalding hot."

"Yes, I had that game played on me once," remarked Chief Clerk McDermott, rather carelessly.

"I don't understand you," declared the Poughkeepsie banker.

"You were out in a gasoline launch," "Exactly."

"And the boatman held the bucket over the stern of the boat for several minutes while getting his bearings from the land marks on shore before dipping up the hot water."

"Yes, I think he did."

"I thought so. The hot water came from the exhaust pipe of the gas engine."

"Well, I'll be jiggered!"—San Francisco Chronicle.

advanced stages there is a loss of all self-control. It is suggested by some medical writers that the sufferer should be deprived of personal liberty, even in the early stages of the malady.

The sufferers have been found to show a marked preference for certain colors or combinations of colors. Many of the patients are violently affected by music and their paroxysms are brought on by music, or at least much increased in violence. These symptoms have much in common with St. Vitus' dance, whose victims are also affected by certain colors and by music.

The treatment for tarantism is similar to that employed with more familiar nervous disorders. The patient is removed as much as possible from all excitement. A complete change of air and scene is usually prescribed. Only the simplest foods are permitted and the sufferer is encouraged to take as much outdoor exercise as possible, together with cold baths and vigorous massage. Such treatment has been found to bring relief within a few weeks.

In treating violent cases quieting medicines are sometimes employed. When the disease reaches an advanced stage, accompanied by screaming and jumping, it may be found necessary to place the sufferer in restraint. It has been found that even when the sufferer seems to have lost all control over her understanding she will be found sufficiently composed at intervals to obey the instructions the doctor or attendants may give.

It has been found extremely difficult to work a complete cure in the more violent cases which have been neglected. Years after the victim has apparently been completely restored to her normal health any undue excitement is likely to bring on a relapse and a recurrence of the distressing symptoms.—New York Sun.

VERDI'S VILLA AND GARDEN

Home Designed Entirely by the Great Musician Producing Effects Not Usually Seen in Italy.

Bucceci is one of those numerous small Italian towns which have no particular sights to attract the tourists of culture, but which are all the pleasanter for combining modern prosperity with their simple old-fashioned charm.

The Villa Sant Agata is another two miles beyond the town. The property was nothing but open country when Verdi bought it, and every detail of the house and garden was designed by him. It is interesting to look at the expression of his personality in a musical form and contrast it with the average type of small Italian house and garden. Verdi was a man of very humble origin, who had in youth no opportunities for acquiring what is called a liberal education. He attained success rapidly and in middle life was free from all financial anxieties.

His dominating characteristics are its simplicity and its privacy, the latter a strange quality to find in a country where small houses generally exhibit as much as possible of the owner's private life in gardens separated from the road only by a barbed wire hedge and consisting mainly of gravel with a few raised beds of gaudy red and yellow flowers. Verdi preferred what on the continent is called an English garden, that is, not the garden of hermetic borders and shaven lawns, but a miniature park in which neither flowers nor formally has any place.

An English garden would perhaps hardly have given himself the trouble to build the elaborate staircase grove called the Tomb of Aida, but to an English eye there is a great charm in the well planned clumps of trees, and the winding paths bordered on each side with the rows of poplars. Even the Tomb of Aida, has attained picturesqueness, for it is smothered in creepers and merely makes a pleasant place in which to enjoy the shade, on a sunny afternoon. The house is neither large nor small. It is built on the style of no particular period and has no architectural pretensions, but it achieves a certain dignity and beauty by its absence of decoration and its just proportions.

The room which Verdi habitually occupied has been left as it was in his time. It is a fair sized room on the ground floor, with a large window opening into the garden. Against one wall a bed, against the opposite one a grand

Rub Backache away with a small trial bottle of
"St. Jacobs Oil"

Ah! Pain is gone!
Quickly?—Yes. Almost instant relief from soreness, stiffness, lameness and pain follows a gentle rubbing with "St. Jacobs Oil."

Apply this soothing, penetrating oil directly upon the ache, and like magic, relief comes. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless backache, lumbago and sciatica cure which never disappoints, and doesn't burn the skin.

Straighten up! Quit complaining! Stop those torturous "stitches." In a moment you will forget that you ever had a back, because it won't hurt or be stiff or lame. Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Oil" from your druggist now and get this lasting relief.

plandorfe, facing the window a large sofa and in the middle of the room an old fashioned writing table, with a well-worn armchair. It is all quite uninteresting and characteristic of the man, who detested ceremony and parade, and who resented above all things any intrusion into his private life.

The only object in the room which is of artistic interest is the one thing which has been placed there since Verdi's death, the original bust of the composer executed by Vincenzo Gemito in the early 70's when the sculptor was little more than 20 years old, and commissioned by Verdi as an excuse for giving him general financial assistance at a moment when he stood badly in need of it. It represents Verdi with head bowed in meditation, the beard falling on the folds of a coat thrown over his shoulders. It has become familiar to many in reproductions, but Signor Angello Carraro, who showed the villa, pointed out that the substitution in these days of an open coat for the voluminous cloak has robbed the bust of much of its character. As a likeness it is declared by those who knew Verdi intimately to be beyond praise.—London Times.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were finished and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the unabridged dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary use. Even those who possess the splendid dictionary in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience in having this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave in most cases little to be desired."—Albert H. Cook, Jr., Ph.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 26, 1911.

DISEASE OF THE SUFFRAGETTES

It is Called Tarantism—Precursor of a Loss of Self Control.

According to several medical authorities the suffragette suffers from a definite nervous disorder in a more or less violent degree. The medical term for the complaint is tarantism. The disease, in its incipient stages, at least, is curable. The malady is characterized with St. Vitus' dance. Special investigations in the matter have been made by Dr. A. E. Shipley of Cambridge, England, and by German scientists, who confirm his opinions.

The malady completely baffled the physicians of early times. Between the fourteenth and sixteenth centuries it spread throughout Europe. Medical authorities believe that the present demonstration, especially in England, are simply a recurrence of this ancient disease.

The symptoms of tarantism may be readily recognized. One of the most common habits of the sufferer is the monotonous and rhythmical utterance of some word or short phrase. In more

WARNING FOR SMALL TOWN

Ideal Is Not Beauty In Spots but That the Whole Should Be Harmonious.

Lawson Purdy, in a recent address, emphasized the unfortunate living and working conditions that have grown out of the unnecessary congestion of New York's business center. He asserted that the statement often made by New Yorkers that the shape of their island makes congestion necessary is absurd.

"If 30 years ago we had made suitable laws regulating the erection of buildings," he said, "the land values in New York city would be more uniform—would be more spread out. When land values are spread out, so are the people. What we need most is the law of love in city building."

He quoted statistics showing that within a single radius of 1,000 feet are two business lots, both 25 feet wide and 100 feet deep. One of these lots is valued at $1,250,000. The other at $25,000. He asserted that conditions developed in New York's business section as a result of this unequal congestion brought ill health and financial loss to the workers in the buildings and to the proprietors of those buildings.

"The long," he said, "the idea of city planning has been the making of a city beautiful in spots. Real city planning is more. It is the developing of a city beautiful within and without—the making it an uplift to all who dwell therein."

PARKS IN DANISH CAPITAL

People Are Well Supplied With Recreative Grounds, All Splendidly Maintained.

The area of the public parks and gardens in Copenhagen belonging to the municipality amounts to about 125 hectares (100 acres), of which about 75 hectares (185 acres) have been added during the last 35 years. About 60 hectares (148 acres) of these 75 have been constructed especially for sports.

Some 13,000 trees are planted in the streets and roads of Copenhagen, and the total expenditure for the maintenance of the municipal parks and trees amounts to $48,840 annually, of which about $8,040 is for inspection.

Besides the area of municipal parks and gardens given, there are about 75 hectares of parks in Copenhagen belonging to the state, consisting of parks and gardens surrounding old castles. The annual expenditures for the maintenance of these parks amount to $17,420, of which about $4,020 is for inspection. The city of Copenhagen, including the suburbs of Frederiksberg, has a total population of 668,898.

Teach Children to Play.

A full-time course in play and recreation, under the direction of George Ellsworth Johnson, formerly superintendent of the Pittsburgh Playground association, is announced in a recent special bulletin of the New York School of Philanthropy.

"The beginning of the present century," says the bulletin, "has been marked by a civic, social and educational movement, which has progressed with wonderful rapidity. This is the movement for a normal, healthful play life of the people. This is the modern Renaissance, the Renaissance of play. Repeatedly in the history of the world the spirit of play has preceded, or marked, a period of great human advancement, as in the period of the glory of Athens, the age of Lorenzo in Florence, the rise of chivalry, and the awakening of the Fatherland."

Maine Dinner of 1835.

One day this week, while workmen were clearing out rubbish from the rooms of the top story of the Johnson brothers block, on Front street, which years ago used to be occupied as servants' quarters of the Elliott house, which was known as one of the best hotels in the state, they came across an old bill of fare of the Franklin house, dated Oct. 16, 1835, and the landlords of the olden days were stars in their business, judging from the menu, which was as follows: Mutton soup, boiled corned beef, tongue, chicken and pork, stewed partridge, stewed rabbit, boiled rice, stewed potatoes, stewed oysters, roast beef, turkey, duck, goose, chicken, game, partridge black duck, puddings and pastries, dessert, etc. On the menu card was a long list of liquors.—Daily Times.

Sure Sign.

A minister, while visiting his people one day in the bush, was asked to stay for dinner.

"While sitting down on a veranda a little boy about five came round to him and after talking a little while, said: 'You can't guess what we are going to have for dinner.'"

The minister said he would give up after several guesses.

"The little boy then said, 'It's roly-poly puddin', I know, cos mother's only got one stocking on.'—London Answers.

CHICKEN SERVED IN JELLY

Always Something New in the Preparation of This Thoroughly Appreciated Summer Dish.

Roast a plump tender fowl, basting to keep it tender. When cold remove the skin and cut in very thin small slices. Put the bones in a saucepan with three cups of water and cook for three hours, reduce to two and a half cups. Add one tablespoon each of chopped onion, celery and carrot, one sprig of parsley and thyme, a small sprig of savory, one-half bay leaf, one clove and six pepper corns. Cook for ten minutes, strain through a cheese cloth, cool. Soak one-half box of gelatin in half a cup of the cooled stock till soft. Warm the remainder of the stock and add the gelatin, stirring well. Add one tablespoon of lemon juice, heat to the boiling point, season with salt and cayenne. Beat the white of one egg till slightly foamy, add to it gradually one cup of the hot mixture, then add the egg and stock very gradually to the hot liquid; bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Remove to back of range and let stand for half an hour, strain through a jelly bag and let cool. Select a round pan that will be full when the chicken and jelly are added. Set the pan in ice water and pour in enough of the jelly to cover the bottom. When this is hard decorate the surface with hard cooked eggs sliced and cut in fancy shapes; pour in more jelly, a spoonful at a time, until the eggs are firmly fixed, then add enough to make the jelly three-fourths of an inch thick. When firm put in a layer of chicken cut in small thin slices, first dipping them in a little liquid gelatin, then add the jelly a little at a time until the mold is full. If the mold is very deep two layers of chicken may be added. When the jelly is firm, turn from the mold on a fancy platter and garnish with parsley. It may be sliced and laid on lettuce or grape leaves for individual plates. A boiled fowl may be used in this way.

FUDGE AND WHIPPED CREAM

Delicacy Rich Enough to Tax the Digestive Powers of All but the Very Young.

Fudge with whipped cream is a delicacy rich enough to appeal to the palate of the most exacting boarding school girl.

First, measure out a pound and a half of brown sugar—three cups—into a saucepan, and add to this a cup of milk, half a cup of butter, a pinch of salt and a half square of chocolate and cook the mixture till it hardens when tried in cold water.

Take from the fire and beat with vigor for three minutes. Have ready a half pint of cream beaten to a froth and add this to the mixture. Next add a little vanilla for flavoring and chopped walnut meats if desired. Proceed as with the usual fudge, beating till almost stiff and cooling on buttered tin.

For the Sewing Room.

When seasons become dull, put a pin between the blades and rub it up and down, working the blades as in cutting. This will put a new edge on the scissors and takes but a moment's time.

If one likes to have her towels marked, but has not the time to embroider them nor the money to spend on handwork, the sewing machine shops, where one has nothing but stitching done will embroider a monogram or initials by machine for 10 or 15 cents each, and as each letter is stuffed as in the handwork, when carefully laundered and ironed on a black cloth, the effect is quite as good as of handwork. Of course, the towel must be marked before giving it to the shop.

Raspberry Shrub.

A favorite old fashioned drink: Pour a quart of best elder vinegar over four quarts of red raspberries and let them stand four days. Then strain, and to every quart of raspberry juice add one pound of granulated sugar. Boil for twenty minutes, skimming carefully; bottle, seal, and keep in a cool place until needed. When serving put the desired quantity in a glass, add cracked ice and water. This is very refreshing and wholesome drink for hot weather.

"Bruta" With Pecans.

"Bruta" is another name for curdled ice cream, and here is an unusually good recipe for making it: Make a custard, using a little less than a quart of milk to two eggs. Put one pound of dark sugar in a hot skillet and stir until it has become a rich, reddish brown. Then mix with the custard while the latter is still hot. When it has cooled, add a pint of cream and a half cupful of finely crushed pecan meats. Freeze as usual.

New Scrub Bucket.

The newest style in buckets is a great improvement over the old pail where a forgotten cake of soap sometimes dissolved and there was no place to lay the cloth. Now there is an improved pail, square in shape, with a small tin tray which fits into the top. This tray has a compartment for box of washing powder, soap, rag and brush, and is a great improvement over the old kind of house bucket.

To Keep the Pantry Cool.

Fasten two thicknesses of muslin over the pantry window; keep the window open and the muslin wet with salt and water. This will keep the flies out as well as cooling the pantry.

DISHES OF COLD EGGS

WELCOME CHANCES FROM THE METHODS MOST IN USE.

Are Delicious Served in Aspic Jelly or Mayonnaise—Great Variety of Hard Boiled With Most Attractive Decorations.

If a poached egg is to be served cold, either in aspic jelly or masked with mayonnaise in a paper case or pastry shell, it is important that it should be properly poached. Let a bay leaf simmer in the water and add a tablespoonful of vinegar or plain vinegar. Uniform the egg is poached in a bag to insure the white keeping its shape, cut the white with a round cookie cutter as soon as the egg is cold.

The making of the aspic jelly does not entail the work it formerly did, as the many canned and condensed beef steaks can be used, with the addition of extra seasonings and gelatin. A thin layer of the liquid jelly should be poured into a shallow enamel pan large enough to hold the necessary number of cold poached eggs. When the jelly begins to harden lay the nicely trimmed eggs at regular intervals, flat side down.

Pour a little of the liquid jelly over the surface of the eggs and arrange a circle of alternate capers and dais of pickled beet. Have four small triangles of cold tongue or thinly shaved lean ham placed at the outer edge, pointing toward the yolk. Make the decoration as highly colored as possible, choosing green peppers, carrots, truffles or pimentos to make a good showing through the covering of aspic. Pour on the remaining liquid jelly and chill thoroughly.

Have ready either cases of paper or shells of plain pastry. Cut out the jelly eggs, using a cutter of a size to correspond with the case. Remove the eggs with a cake turner and place one in each holder. With a pastry tube pipe a border of mayonnaise around each.

Hard boiled eggs for cold service admit of great variety. They are served either whole or in halves and in either case the yolk may be removed and mixed with any preferred ingredient, then replaced as a stuffing.

When served whole the stuffed egg is masked with slightly stiffened mayonnaise so that it has the appearance of not having been cut. The elaborate decorations are imbedded in this outer covering and the whole thing mounted for serving in some attractive way.

A thin slice of Bermuda onion, one ring removed from the center, makes a sufficient hollow in which to set an egg and a thick slice of cucumber scooped out to form a little nest, in number of variety which is appetizing and pretty. Half an egg can be served in similar fashion, the stuffed yolk surrounded well above the white and surrounded with a ring of closely set capers.

To Keep Greens Crisp.

Lettuce, celery, parsley, greens or any foliage vegetable may be restored to perfect crispness and freshness, however limp and wilted they may be, by first plunging them into cold water and allowing them to remain a few moments, then draining them off, leaving them practically dry. Then put them into an air-tight receptacle, leaving for several hours. One large pan turned over another pan of equal size in a satisfactory air-tight receptacle. To purify greens that are to be eaten raw, use a pinch of borax and powder in the water in which they are to be washed.

To Remove Iron Rust.

Crumb of tartar will remove iron rust. To take iodine stains from linen make a thick paste of ordinary starch and cover the stains, and then apply heat—either that of the sun or stove. For carbolic acid, burn apply vinegar at once, and then make a poultice of stale bread and vinegar. This holds good for a burn from lye.

For Leather Furniture.

Boil half a pint of linseed oil and allow it to stand until nearly cold, then add in a pint of vinegar. Stir until thoroughly mixed and bottle for use. When needed, shake the bottle well and pour a very little on a soft flannel, rubbing it well into the leather, or, turning the flannel as it gets dirty.

Keeping Butter.

For keeping butter cool in the hot weather, get some saltwater, dissolve it in cold water and stand the butter crock in it so that the saltwater water may reach well up the sides. Cover it with a wet cloth, the ends of which, resting in the saltwater water, will keep it constantly moist.

Pineapple Salad.

Use two pineapples, shredding them and disposing of cores. Put shredded fruit in glass dish and pour over it half a pint of powdered sugar mixed with tablespoonful of lemon juice. Let the salad stand for several hours before serving, so as to dissolve sugar. Serve with mayonnaise or French dressing.

For Mending Overshoes.

When rubber overshoes split down the back, mend them by taking a piece of surgical tape and pasting it upon the inside of the heel.

To Keep Silver Bright.

Always put a lump of camphor into the drawer where silver is kept. It keeps the silver from tarnishing.

HE WON OUT.

Minor Clerk Became Chief of a Great Service—Reward of Energy.

In the "Interesting People" department of the American Magazine appeared an article about Sumner I. Kimball, chief of the United States Life Saving service, who rose to that position from a minor clerkship in the treasury department by sheer ability and imaginative power. Mr. Kimball created the Life Saving service as it now exists, and is still planning for it although he is now a man of seventy-eight years. Following is an extract from the article:

"Away back near the middle of the last century, namely in the year 1861, a little curly-haired, brown-eyed, square-jawed man, still in his twenties, gave up the practice of law as a member of the Boston bar and accepted of a minor clerkship in the treasury department at Washington.

"The young man's name was Sumner I. Kimball. He had been graduated from Bowdoin college at the age of twenty-one, taught school for a season and served a term in the Legislature of his native state. Maine. Many of his acquaintances knew how the Uncle Sam had to offer in the way of advancement to a young man of education and ability, his change of vocation must have appeared to them as the sacrifice of a promising career. He was the exception who proved the rule, however.

"In 1870 he had climbed up through the several clerical grades to the position of chief clerk in the office of the second auditor. While serving in this capacity his ability attracted the attention of the secretary of the treasury, and in the following year he was appointed chief of the revenue marine—now the revenue cutter service.

"There was a field of endeavor awaiting the talents of the new chief. S. I. Kimball did not succeed in his undertaking until on June 1878—by which time he had established a total of 148 life-saving stations and extended the service in all our sea and lake coasts. Congress divested the service from the revenue marine and made it an independent establishment. And Mr. Kimball was placed at the head of the bureau with the title of general superintendent.

"Today the organization has nearly three hundred commodious stations equipped with the most approved boats and life saving appliances, and manned by more than two thousand men, who, under a system of semi-military discipline, guard heavily (a thousand miles of coast).

"Since the year 1871, when Mr. Kimball took over the handful of boat shelters that formed the nucleus of the establishment, the crews of the service have assisted upwards of 25,000 vessels, carrying a total of 160,000 persons. Of these, only 1,330 were lost—a less number by nearly 200 than perished when the Titanic went down. The value of the vessels assisted, with that of their cargoes, was more than $300,000,000, while the property lost amounted only to a trifle over $50,000,000.

CARD CATALOGUING THE STAGE.

Theatrical managers have often on their lips the phrase, 'What the public wants.' The layman has not always been convinced that they knew quite what is implied by it. He, poor man, in surveying any theatrical season, has seen little more than an unclassifiable variety of plays. Beside raw, so-called red-blooded, red light pieces, he has observed spectacular phantasies, roaring farces, certain excellent subdued comedies sometimes with settings as remote as the eighteenth century, with an occasional Shakespeare. He wonders whether popular tastes are sufficiently homogeneous to be embodied in the term 'public,' and concludes merely that a good play will nearly always go and that a certain number of poor plays continue to have their runs. He is still optimistic to the extent of believing that the best in human nature can be stirred by the stage, but that left to itself, the human nature of the public is not always the best judge.

But it now appears that the layman has been all wrong. While he has been groping the theatrical manager has been employing such a scientific device as the card catalogue. Mr. George Cohen in the current Mr. Charles has divided emotions felt by an audience into three large classes: tears, laughs and thrills; and enumerates well known managerial tricks to produce each. Some of the leading 'trick-getters' in use his matter-of-fact phrase, are the following: 'A child in a nightgown saying his "Now I lay me;" a little child dying on the stage; "any have scene played in the moonlight," an errand woman at bay and crying out, 'I am not a bad woman'; a child returned to his mother; a character laboring under a great sorrow with a smile on his face. Nearly all these details are documented by reference to recent plays.

"Th' laughs are too well known to need citing; most of them are varieties

GRAND JURY BEGIN LODGING HOUSE INQUIRY

Boston, Dec. 4.—A thorough investigation of the Hotel Arcadia fire, which caused the death of twenty-eight men and injuries to other lodgers, began today by the grand jury today. Witnesses appeared before the body shortly before noon.

One man who was called upon to testify was Augustine Manahan, manager and "inspector" of the chain of lodging houses operated by Joseph G. Lyons, proprietor of the Arcadia. Another was Warren Crockett, an eighteen-year-old son of a family who was in the South End building at the time of the fire. Crockett, who did not have the necessary twenty cents to pay for a room, had said that he was asleep in a chair in the hotel reading-room when the fire started. He claims that he was the first to give warning and alleges that William Walsh, the night clerk, and Arthur McGlynn, the watchman, were not on duty.

It was deemed highly improbable early today that the grand jurors would be able to pay attention to the matter before tomorrow because of the mass of evidence they were to receive in pending cases. However, Assistant District Attorney Abraham C. Webber, who was acting for the Government before the jurors, hurried matters in order that the fire catastrophe could be investigated.

Early in the day, Mr. Lyons, the hotel proprietor, accompanied by four other men, was escorted with Captain Armstrong at police headquarters. Those who went to headquarters with the hotel proprietor included Walsh, Glynn and John McFutry, the day clerk. Leaving headquarters, Captain Armstrong accompanied the party to the grand jury anteroom.

Captain Armstrong gave a key to Inspector Demessy shortly before noon, instructing him to go to the Arcadia with two men whose names he gave him, "to get out of the place any suspicious persons, and to permit the entrance of any others."

The crime is not known.

Mrs. St. Clair Richardson of 49 Blue Hill avenue went to the district attorney's office today to obtain information regarding her brother, William Jackson, fifty-two years, who is said to have been burned in the fire.

"THE GREAT ADVENTURE"

Arnold Bennett's Brilliant Comedy Will Be Presented by Winthrop Ames at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, Next Week

Beginning next Monday, December 8th for two weeks only, Winthrop Ames will present at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, Arnold Bennett's brilliant comedy, "The Great Adventure," which comes direct from the Booth Theatre, New York.

"The Great Adventure" is founded on Arnold Bennett's book "Buried Alive" which millions of readers have enjoyed and, according to the New York Tribune while Arnold Bennett has used the book as a structure only, the results are a charming comedy with all the cleverness of the book without its descriptions. New York critics have generally declared it to be the most worth while production of the season. The story of "The Great Adventure" is that of Ham Carve, England's greatest painter, who also happens to be the shyest man in the world—that is to say shy—when expected to play the celebrity. When judged by his real world celebrity, he is just as delightful and natural as any human being could be. He spends most of his time on the coast, and when in England his valet passes as himself. Quite unexpectedly the valet catches pneumonia, dies and is buried in Westminster Abbey before the amazed painter managed to summon sufficient courage to announce to a sorrowing world in general, and to an irate doctor particularly, that it is the artist who has died. Conditions arise in the form of an attractive widow with whom the valet has been in correspondence through a matrimonial bureau, and as this widow is as charming as he is practical, Ham Carve falls in love with her and marries her and settles in the suburbs of London and lets the world believe that the great artist is dead and that he is really the great man's valet. The part of the shy artist is played by Mr. Lyn Harding, Janet Beecher plays the part of the common sense, intensely practical, and large-hearted widow.

FLEET PASSES GIBRALTAR

The United States battleship fleet passed Gibraltar at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to wireless from the Wyoming. The battleships which have been on the Mediterranean cruise joined forces to the south of Cape Gata at three o'clock in the morning. The Connecticut, Kansas and Ohio are bound for Mexico; the others are returning to the United States. A coal-busser named Crocker, of Philadelphia, died aboard the Ohio and was buried at sea. The fleet stopped during the ceremony and the colors were half-masted for half an hour.

AGAINST BIRDS ON HATS

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

The coffee had been unusually good that morning and as Henry Sparks rose from the breakfast table preparatory to lighting his cigar and starting for the office he said to his wife:

"Eliza, you may have the fall hat you've been yearning for. Here's the ten dollars, but please, in making your purchase remember my prejudice against birds in bonnets."

Eliza beamed. "All right, Henry," she said; "I'll go straight down to Mrs. Capote's this morning. I can get a beauty for ten dollars, I know, and I won't have a single song bird on it."

That night after dinner Mrs. Sparks sent the maid of all work into the front bedroom to bring a box that arrived shortly before from Mrs. Capote's. Mrs. Sparks opened the box, lifted the wonderful creation and said the usual womanly thing: "Isn't it a dream?"

Henry Sparks looked at the hat quizzically. There was not perhaps expressed in his face the admiration and entire approval that Mrs. Sparks had hoped for.

"Henry," she said, "I know there is a bird's head or two and a lot of feathers in it, but Mrs. Capote told me that they were all made-up things, mostly baryard fowls. This head with the slate-blue neck and just a touch of brown at the place where it was separated from the breast, was the head of a common domestic fowl in China. Now don't look that way. Everybody is wearing feathers, and I don't see why I shouldn't wear them."

Henry Sparks rose from the table and took the befuddled hat out of his wife's hand and looked at it through his glasses. "This," he said, pointing with his finger at the bird's head with beautiful steel blue feathers, "is, as I understand Mrs. Capote, the head of a common Chinese domestic fowl. Eliza, when you wander along by some tumbling stream in the springtime you will hear now and then a rattling cry. It is a bird's voice. It is as much a part of the time and place and of the wildness of it all as are the trees, the stream or even the April clouds overhead. Wander along the same stream in the heat of summer and you hear the same rattling cry. A bird form dashes by, then stops in midflight and hovers lightly over a pool beneath. Then there is a sound of the plash of water as a feathered form descends and plunges. There is a sensation of coolness in the sound of that plunge that tempers the heat of the August day to the wayfarer. Perhaps you have a legal right to wear this bird because it may have been killed in New York, where the wise legislators withdrew from this creature the protection of the law. The men who urged that it be exempt from protection were men of the kind who go into the northern woods and drug selens, dynamite streams and catch and kill thousands of fish that they may pick out the big ones for the market. The souls of these men are in their pockets. This bird catches a few small fish for the sustenance of itself and its young. It adds, when not on a bonnet, a living interest to every waterside. Eliza, your Chinese domestic fowl is an American Kingfisher."

"Henry, Mme.—" "Eliza, this bird that has been eating up the crops in India, thus causing a famine in that country, was hatched in a nest in an Illinois tree. Perhaps you have the legal right to wear it. The wise legislators of Illinois recently added this bird to the game list, so that it may be slaughtered and made into pie. The souls of the legislators were situated in their stomachs. This bird has stood as an emblem of peace since the world was, and yet every pot and millinery hunter in the land makes war upon it. You are a good Episcopalian and you sometimes tell me that there is nothing more beautiful than all that pertains to the church and its teachings. Do you, Trinitarian that you are, know that it was in the living form of one of these murdered innocents in your bonnet that the Holy Spirit descended upon our Savior as he stood at the side of the Baptist by the waters of Jordan? Eliza, this East Indian crop-destroying, starvation-producing bird, in an Illinois morning dove."

"Doubtless Mme. Capote told you that this little bunch of feathers that clasp the upturned brim of the hat came from a bird happy of some remote region whose daily practice it is to carry and devour the sweet babes of doting mothers. Well, these cinnamon-brown feathers with these soft gray dotted with darker color represent all that is left of a hermit thrush, a bird that sings its scarpish song in the twilight northern wilderness. It is the note of this bird that Burroughs says suggests a serene religious beatitude."

"But, Henry, Mme. Capote said—"

"Eliza, there are a thousand Mme. Capotes, and most of them are liars. But Mrs. Sparks was in tears."

NOT WEDDED TO THE TRUTH

Descendants of the Original Ananias Evidently Still Flourish in Province of China.

The honesty and frankness of the Chinese has often been matter for travelers' tales; but, according to Frank Wallace, author of "The Big Game of Central and Western China," it is only the inhabitants of the coast provinces who are distinguished for veracity, says the New York Post. In the course of his excursion to the Gobi desert to supply taktis and other rare mammals to the British museum, he suffered much inconvenience and a few misfortunes from the inability of the natives to tell the unvarnished truth.

Two incidents he recounted. He was once upon a region where pheasants were plentiful, and if he had had dogs, he might have enjoyed first-rate covert shooting. When he questioned his guides as to their numbers, a certain celebrated Ananias set about recounting the details of a ride where birds were plentiful.

"Suddenly," he declared, "my horse shied. My gun was slung on my back. Both barrels went off. I looked around and there were three dead pheasants in the road."

It was this same man who, one day when the conversation turned on celebrated travelers, saw a chance too good to be missed. Marco Polo's name had just been mentioned.

"Marco Polo," said the man, in a casual manner, flicking off the end of his cigar. "Oh, yes, my old father was his guide. A nice man. He came from Russia. How old was he? Well, I never saw him myself. It was before my time. About forty-five, I should say. He had a grand horse, he brought with him all the way from his own country. He gave it to my father, but the poor beast died from grief when the old man pegged out. It would seem that this was just the sort of person on whom Marco Polo, when he traveled in that part of the world, actually depended for information."

UPSET THE QUIET OLD TOWN

Indignant Bees, Loose on Philadelphia Streets, Made Citizens Forget Their Dignity.

A winged peril descended on shoreward bound crowds at the Market street ferries, Philadelphia, recently, sending men, women and children scurrying for safety. Some of them weren't quick enough, and as a consequence, spent a day nursing on various parts of the anatomy, aches of peevish and indignant bees.

It happened when a box containing a hive of forty thousand bees fell from an express wagon at the ferry. The box, which was consigned to a man in Swedesboro, N. J., broke as it fell, and the hive rolled out. Peevish at the indignities heaped upon them, two thousand of the bees swarmed out.

The advance guard of the little army of stingers attacked a street cleaner. With a howl he dropped his broom and took refuge in a saloon. About the same time the other bees got busy. The crowds scattered and in a short time the ferries were deserted, save for the buzzing swarm.

Frantic messages were sent to the company which shipped the bees and a representative of the firm hurried to the place. He nailed up the box and sent it on its way, minus several hundred honey gatherers.

Fee Was Lost.

The age and dullness of the miscellaneuous reading-matter with which physicians stock the tables of their waiting-rooms have long been a subject of jest. Here is a story which shows that it might be to the doctor's own interest to supply more entertaining reading.

Speaking at the annual dinner of the Royal Society of Medicine on one occasion, Mr. Hurrell declared that only once had he been in search of a physician.

"I determined," he said, "on that single occasion at least, to die undisturbed. I started off to consult a doctor in Harley street, who had written a book on the diseases from which I believed I suffered. It was a hot day in July, and I had to walk from near Addison road to Harley street. I was in a profuse perspiration when I arrived. I had to wait, and on the doctor's table I found the book written by him on 'my disease.' I opened it at random and read: 'The patient who is suffering from this disease never perspires.' I at once walked out."—London Telegraph.

Ladies' Purse From Frog Skins. Eighteen big mountain frogs have been brought to this country from the Philippines by Dr. F. M. McAllister, ship's surgeon on the Korax. He will give them to the New York park commission for propagation.

The mouse-colored skin, mottled with spots of darker hue, may be used for the manufacture of women's purses and chateleine sacks, as are the hides of crocodiles.

The frogs are delicate in spite of their size, and five died on the voyage.

The dead frogs were in much demand among women passengers, who wanted to have purses made out of the skins.

STRANGE LADY IN BLACK

By LAURA L. WHIMLEY.

The boy was standing home from a day's fishing when he saw her coming down the river road. All in black from head to foot, her figure moved against the red sunset sky, tall and slender and very graceful, walking elastically as if upborne by vigor and youth. The boy noted curiously the heavy black veil drawn across her face. He was about to cross the intersection of their ways when she lifted her hands and beckoned him. He and she were all the human life in the landscape, except the darkening village roofs and chimneys beyond the turn.

"You know where all the people live in town, don't you, dear?" she asked, throwing back her veil.

Her voice was sweet and seductive, her face beautiful beyond all the lad's experience.

"Yes, sir," he stammered, blushing.

"Yes, um."

"Do you know where Mr. Hurst lives?"

"Jesse Hurst?"

"Are there two Hursts?"

"Yes, Mr. Judge Hurst, he lives in the big house; an' young Mr. Hurst—he's his son—he lives on Water street since he got married. He ain't been married very long."

The boy stopped, astounded at what he saw. The beautiful face frowned him steadily, but the blood went out of it, leaving it thinner and older.

Then with a sort of ripple, the soul came back.

"I beg your pardon, dear: I am listening now. Whom did Mr. Hurst marry?"

"Hello Dady. They had an awful fine wedding. I guess Dady was glad Bells got him. She's awful proud."

"Prouder than I am?"

"Nim" faltered the boy. Then, breathlessly, he essayed his first compliment. "They ain't nobody prouder'n you!"

She laughed with a flash of sweetness over her whole face, and eyes of tears in her eyes. Putting one soft hand under the boy's chin, she stooped and kissed him on the mouth. Thereby she sealed him her body and soul.

"Will you do something for me?" "Yes, ma'am."

"I want you to take a letter to Mr. Hurst for me. Wait while I write it."

She sat down on a stump of a tree, and wrote with a lead pencil on her knee. It did not take long.

"Can you give this to Mr. Hurst without letting anyone see, not even his new wife? Do not tell anyone that you have seen me. Diddy back Mr. Hurst's answer, I will wait for you here."

As he went lingeringly the boy wheeled on one bare, treeless head to look at her. She was sitting motionless on the stump, with one clenched hand pressed hard against her breast.

"I ain't cold," thought the boy, "but I'm a-shiverin' all over! An' now I ain't shiverin' no more! Wonder if I kinatched somethin'! Gee! Ain't she queer—an' lovely!"

He saw young Mr. Hurst, with his youthful, curly figure, his curly head and handsome, hard countenance, down town, followed into a quiet side street, and (timidly) accosted him.

"D— you!" said young Mr. Hurst. "What do you want?"

"The boy silently proffered the letter."

Young Mr. Hurst swore repeatedly on reading it. He tore a leaf from his note book and scribbled an answer.

"There! Take her that! And mind you hold your tongue!"

It was so dark when the lady in black rose to meet the boy, that she could hardly see to read the note she clutched in her hands.

"I expect I'll get licked fer stayin' out so late."

"Are you going to tell?" she asked, fixing him with her wonderful eyes.

"No, ma'am."

"Not even if they whip you, or torment you, or put you in jail? What ever happens?"

"No, ma'am," he repeated, huskily. "I have no money to give you," she said, considering.

The boy threw back his head proudly above his aching throat.

"I don't want no money!"

She bent on him one of her sweet, swimming looks.

"A child!" she cried, softly, then suddenly gathered him to her arms, pressing his face in her bosom. The instant before he raised his lips to hers, the boy felt his cheek against something hard and cold.

His uneasy, rapturous slumbers were broken by a thumping at his father's door. He put his head out of the window. There was a tumult of men's excited voices.

"Young Hurst—Fond him on the river road!—Bent on a clock—Later in his pocket, queer—Lead pencil scribble—Woman—Knife in him!—Stone dead!"

The river road. The boy fought back a fearful impulse to scream out his agonized question: Was she killed, too?

He heard no word of her, then or later. His young honor would let him ask no question, and upon was ever asked him, about the lady in black.

NO OBJECTION TO BOOTHS BY THE REPUBLICANS

Contrary to reports there is no discussion on the part of the ward committees, in regard to the new booths being erected for the approaching election. The law which was passed at the last legislature, want in effect on approval in May.

The Republican ward committee deny that they in any way object to the booths, but are satisfied with not only the law but the construction of the booths as well. They claim that any law that will safeguard the voters is proper and that they have nothing to object to in any way.

ALASKA IN THE SUMMER TIME

Speaking again from an experience of more than 100,000 miles, travel on sea and land, it is remarkable how many things you see in Alaskan waters which you have seen nowhere else in the world. It was a novel sight to have a whole school of whales spouting at one time with some of them cruising up near the boat and rolling over, like automobiles pitching in a heavy sea. And the herds of Alaskan fur-seals, hoarsely bellowing as we approached, added to memory's repertoire of barking monkeys, growling camels and trumpeting elephants. And for such commonplace features as fish—big fish and plenty of them—listen to my fish story. It has at least the merit that it can be proven by 100 people, which is more than can be said of most fish stories.

Another unusual thrill that comes to the summer traveler in Alaska springs from the eternal daylight of that wonderful country. Whether you actually see the midnight sun or not depends upon the date and the latitude to which you ascend, but there is a thing of the sort, after the second night out of Seattle. A fluky glancing takes its place until you get with farther north, and then you may read a newspaper on deck at midnight without straining your eyes. The phenomenon is one of the strange in Alaska. It gives you a shock to leave the club at Dawson or Fairbanks at 11 in the morning and find yourself in broad daylight when you come out in the silent street—Lent the.

"A THOUSAND YEARS AGO"

The second and last week of "A Thousand Years Ago" at the Shubert Theatre will begin next Monday, December 8th.

"A Thousand Years Ago" is an original play suggested by the famous Persian romance in "The Thousand and One Days" wherein is related the story of the overwhelming love of the gallant and youthful Calid, Prince of Astrakhan, for Feridun, the beautiful Princess of Pohl.

It combines all the delightful elements of comedy and romance and a setting of singular charm and with all the irresistible fascination of Arabian Nights splendor. A unique feature of the production is the elaborate impressionistic futuristic scene settings. It carries its audience back to the

CIGAR BOXES

There is a Tremendous Trade in these Cedar Wood Receptacles

Cigar boxes are a negligible quantity to the average smoker who stands before a tastefully dressed show case and buys a five cent straight or a three for a quarter. Few of even the most invertebrate smokers ever stop to think of the number of these boxes used in the United States during the year, or from where they come.

Thirty millions in the total number supplied in cigar manufacturers in the United States. Many millions more enter the country filled with foreign rolled cigars from Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. Manufacturers declare that the boxes made from Spanish cedar, a wood that is rarely seen outside of Cuba, is the best for packing the seductive weed.

Various woods have been tried but wherever used connoisseurs have protested that even the finest of cigars were spoiled by putting them in boxes made from other wood than the Spanish cedar. This wood always retains the flavor of a good cigar, and some assert that it greatly improves the flavor. The reason given is that the Spanish cedar grows only in that soil which produces the finest quality of what is known as Havana tobacco.—Washington Star.

KANSAS CITY PLACES A BAN ON EGGS

Kansas City, Dec. 4.—Placing of a boycott on eggs in every home in Kansas City was the announced purpose of a mass meeting of practically all the women's organizations in the city, called today by the Kansas City Housewives' league. The women sought to place a ban on the home consumption of eggs until the present retail price of 40 cents is reduced.

"The National Housewives' League" said Mrs. Willard Q. Curren, who presided at the meeting, "has recommended that the Kansas City branch establish a retail quotation of 32 cents for the best storage eggs. There are practically no strictly fresh eggs obtainable in Kansas City, and the present price of 40 cents is entirely too much for the consumer to pay."

Among the organizations that joined the Housewives' League in the mass meeting were the Kansas City Council of Clubs, the Oshonema Society, the Council of Jewish Women, the Consumers' League and the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

UP GO EGG QUOTATIONS

Advance in Prices in Pittsburg in Face of the Department of Justice Investigation.

Pittsburg, Dec. 4.—In the face of the fact that agents of the Department of Justice are here to investigate the cause of the high price of eggs, quotations for "selected" eggs were advanced today from 45 and 46 cents to 50 and 52 cents a dozen. Dealers declare this is because eggs, to bear the name of "selected" must not be more than a week old.

Alleged price fixing by the Butler and Egg Exchange is one of the things the Government agents are investigating.

LIVES IN DEADLY WEAPON

Inventor will Long Be Remembered as Originator of Famous Gatling Gun.

The first of these terrible engines of warfare known as the Gatling gun was invented in 1862 by Richard Jordan Gatling, who was born in North Carolina. Gatling, the son of a rich planter, was well educated and early devoted himself to scientific work and mechanical experiments. His first device was a screw propeller for steamships on which an application for a patent he found himself anticipated by Ericsson. Next he contrived a machine for planting rice, wheat and other grain in drills which proved highly successful. Having used his inventive genius in such a manner as to assist in feeding and preserving humanity, he next set about the task of contriving a machine for killing which has been adopted by all the the inventor devoted his time almost of little present value. The Gatling gun was a revolutionary machine of artillery, and with his death fellows. There were crude rapid fire guns in use when Gatling turned his attention to the subject, but they aroused of the world. Tens of thousands of graves now attest to the deadly accuracy of the slaying machines invented by Gatling.

This work of importation has been going on for seven years under the United States Bureau of Entomology. It is an exceedingly difficult undertaking. Nevertheless, much progress has now been made. Eight or ten important species of parasites have been collected abroad in large numbers and brought to this country successfully. The funds for this work were supplied until last year, by the state of Massachusetts. Much of the colonization of parasites was done within that state.

Funds are now supplied by the United States. Also the Mott Department of the State of New Hampshire, since the beginning of last year, has been cooperating in the work of colonizing some of the parasites that had already been successfully imported. Several of these species have been started satisfactorily throughout most of the range of the two host pests, in New Hampshire, or have spread into the state. They are gradually increasing in numbers in some sections, especially in Massachusetts, where colonizing was first done, the good work of the parasites is now visible. In other sections still more time must elapse for the parasites to multiply and spread before any visible evidence of their work can be seen.

The colonizing of each species is carefully planned out with a view to placing the colonies at such intervals that there will be normal spread of the parasites through intervening territory. No human agency can induce a more rapid increase of the parasites than that made possible by their own natural limits of reproduction.

It should be understood that there is no one kind of parasite that can possibly be expected to destroy all of the gypsy moth or all of the spruce sawfly. Such results are not found in the native country of the two pests and are not possible here. It will require the combined efforts of the several species of parasites to produce appreciable results.
